Imbert International, Inc. has been a leader in the Chicagoland construction industry since 1950, and the premier partner for commercial cannabis growers throughout the U.S. since 2019. Together, our team of equipment, design and sales experts have more than 300 combined years of mechanical engineering expertise.

The Imbert team represents some of the most trusted manufacturers in the industry, including AGronomic IQ and Quest. We work hand-in-hand to create custom designs and equipment for each cultivator and grow room application to help end users achieve exceptional crop quality, yields and consistent ROI. Diverse regional climates, canopy densities and facility size are unique complexities our team is well-suited to tackle.

Your HVAC system is one of the most important investments you'll make for the success of your crops — and ultimately your bottom line.

Whether you're an existing facility or starting from the ground up, trust Imbert for the best quality and value for your application.
